Finding the talent that makes Deloitte unique

Help our clients effectively manage their business as a Deloitte Risk Consultant

Organisations are exposed to an increased level of uncertainty and rely on the effective management of risk to achieve desired business outcomes. A core part of managing risk are internal controls and the appropriate management of third parties. The increasing burden of maintaining adherence to regulatory requirements means that reducing the cost of compliance is currently a key priority on many Board agendas.

We strive to help our clients by using different techniques and technology to build up cost-conscious risk frameworks that correspond to their continuously changing business needs.

How you can make an impact

- Understanding business requirements and business transformation, and translating them into efficient and smart control frameworks
- Identifying operational, compliance or regulatory requirements as well as automation opportunities and design the relevant internal controls to help manage/mitigate risk
- Gaining experience of the latest technologies and understanding/managing the impact of these on the internal control environment of a company
- Offer strategic guidance to organizations by advising them on effective Supply Chain Risk and Resilience Management strategies and process to ensure alignment with industry best practices and regulations
- Build and maintain client relationships in the risk and controls area to continue to grow our practice

Who we are looking for

- You have a Master's or Bachelor's degree (common applications come from economics, politics, business administration, and business computer science)
- Eagerness to build knowledge and expertise of the core business processes (e.g. PTP, OTC, RTR, Treasury, Tax, HR, etc.) and respective business risks and process level controls

- Knowledge of Enterprise Resource Planning systems (mainly SAP) and other technologies is an advantage
- Previous professional services experience is a strong asset
- You are fluent in English and either German or French
- You are available to start in September 2025 (earlier is possible)
